Gainesville -- The 2009 Fall Parade of Homes, sponsored by the Builders Association of North Central Florida (BANCF), will showcase beautiful new homes throughout Alachua County on October 3-4 & October 10-11. As always, the Parade will highlight a diverse group of housing styles, locations and price ranges.

The Parade offers an opportunity for the community to preview the latest in housing trends and decorative styles. Parade attendees will discover the newest home layouts, the latest in high tech home systems and many interesting decorating ideas.

If you are looking for a place to live and for a solid long-term investment, now is a perfect time to buy a home. Interest rates are low, home prices are competitive and home selections are vast and desirable. As a long-term investment, homeownership is still one of the best investments for individual households. See what opportunities are available in our community during the Fall Parade of Homes™.

Admission is free to the 2009 Fall Parade. Directions, floor plans and descriptions of all homes can be found in Parade Brochure inserted in the October 3rd Gainesville Sun. Additional parade books can be found at all the Parade sites. Hours are 1p.m to 6p.m each day. Visit BANCF's website for additional information at www.banconf.com or call the BANCF office at (352) 372-5649.
