FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE –

Members of the Builders Association of North Central Florida (BANCF) have planned, developed, and worked together to present the latest in home building techniques and neighborhood designs at the 2018 Parade of Homes. “We are proud to show off the local building industry to the community each year during the Parade. Our members are the key to the success of this popular event,” said Eric Drummond, BANCF President.

Parade visitors will not only find a huge variety of home design and décor, but also the newest in landscaping, energy efficient techniques and green building products. This year’s event will showcase 25 new homes in 12 beautiful neighborhoods throughout Alachua County.

Today’s market and near record low mortgage interest rates provide an unprecedented window of opportunity for prospective home buyers. “It’s important to note housing is still one of the best investments around and a cornerstone of the American way of life,” continued Drummond.

The Parade of Homes™ will be open noon to 5pm each Saturday and Sunday, April 21-22 and April 28-29. A full color parade magazine with floor plans, renderings, and maps to all locations will be inserted in the April 21st Gainesville Sun, available online at BANCF.COM, and in each of the parade houses.
