Gainesville -- The 2011 Fall Parade of Homes, sponsored by the Builders Association of North Central Florida (BANCF), will showcase beautiful new homes throughout Alachua County on October 8-9 & October 15-16. As always, the Parade will highlight a diverse group of housing styles, locations and price ranges.

The Parade offers an opportunity for the community to preview the latest in housing trends and decorative styles. Parade attendees will discover the latest in energy efficiency, the newest in home layouts, and many interesting decorating products and services.

Interest rates are at historic lows, home prices are competitive and home selections are vast and desirable. As a long-term investment, homeownership is still one of the best investments for individual households. See what opportunities are available in our community during the Fall Parade of Homes[™].

Admission is free to the 2011 Fall Parade. Directions, floor plans and descriptions of all homes can be found in Parade Brochure inserted in the October 8th Gainesville Sun. Additional parade books can be found at all the Parade sites. Hours are 1p.m to 6p.m each day. Visit BANCF's website for a map to all locations at www.banconf.com or call the BANCF office at (352) 372-5649 for more information.
