Gainesville, FL -- If you have questions on sprucing up your home or garden, the 11th annual North Central Florida's Home Show has the answers! The Home Show will take place March 13 and March 14, 2010 at the Stephen C. O'Connell Center. Presented by the Builders Association of North Central Florida (BANCF) and The Gainesville Sun, this informative show will feature products and services related to home improvement, landscaping, remodeling, decorating, home sales, energy efficient, and green building techniques. In addition to the many home and garden exhibits, the Home Show will also include informational seminars.

"March is usually the time of year when people are thinking about fixing up their yard, doing a remodeling project or thinking of buying a new home. The Home Show is unique in that it provides an opportunity for people to get ideas, have questions answered and to see the latest home products all in one place and all at one time," said Ivan Oelrich, 2010 BANCF President.

This year an "Ask the Professional" series has been added to the Home Show. It will consist of popular home owner topics that will be presented both Saturday and Sunday.

The Home Show will be open from 10am to 5pm on both Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $4.00 per person with children 16 & under free. The O'Connell Center is located at the corner of West University Ave. and Gale Lemerand Drive at the University of Florida. Parking is free. A Home Show program will be inserted in the March 13th edition of The Gainesville Sun.
